Variety of Colour Orchids only to be considered	15 pts
Finishing Pots and equipment should not be visible	15 pts
Ticketing Style – Tickets should be unobtrusive and legible. Names – Should have correct nomenclature	5 pts 5 pts

Display Judging – Key Features of a Display (OSNSW Judging Manual)

Plants shall be arranged so as to create a visual impact. Colour, variety, balance and proportion combine to give overall harmony to the display. Ideally each of the colour groups - e.g. red, white, yellow etc - shall be within the display. Balance and proportion shall be achieved by distributing plants, sizes and colour throughout the display.

The placement of large groups of the same size or colour plants would naturally cause an imbalance. Outstanding plants shall be featured in a prominent position making them a focal point. Over-crowding as well as large gaps shall be avoided. All plants within the display shall be accessible to enable independent viewing.

Foliage plants, such as ferns, may be used to fill gaps between the plants and to hide the pots. These plants shall enhance the display by being softly integrated within the display. Brightly coloured foliage may dominate the display and should generally be avoided as the focal point may be shifted from the orchid flowers.

Plants within the display shall be clearly labelled so the name of the plant can be read by interested people from a distance of several metres. Labels shall be unobtrusive; brightly coloured labels become a dominate feature of the display and should be avoided.
